Find your ring size at home.

Two ways: wrap the paper strip around your finger (this page), or lay a ring that fits on the circles (next page).

FIRST, CHECK THE PRINT SIZE

Print at 100% (“Actual size”), never “Fit to page”. This line must measure exactly 5 cm with a ruler.

Not 5 cm? Change the print setting and print again.

1 The paper strip

1. Cut out a strip along its dotted outline, then cut the short slit.
2. Wrap it around the base of your finger, numbers facing out, and pass the pointed end through the slit.
3. Pull until snug, not tight: it should slide over your knuckle with a little resistance.
4. The number showing at the slit is your Indian ring size. Measure in the evening, when fingers are largest.

A spare strip, in case the first one tears.

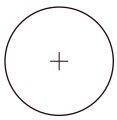

GOOD TO KNOW

— Wide bands, over 6 mm, usually need half a size larger.
— If you are between two sizes, choose the larger one.
— Your first resize within a year is complimentary.

2 Lay a ring on the circles

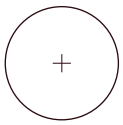

1. Take a ring that fits the finger you are measuring and lay it flat on the circles.
2. Find the circle whose outline sits exactly along the inside edge of the ring, with no paper showing inside.
3. If it falls between two circles, choose the larger one.
